Tuesday. July 1, 1873. The Bannich Meeting.

We imagine the electors of Victoria District who attended he meeting at Saanich on Saturday evening last, must have been taken comewhat by surprise when they read the cooked up report of the proceedings published in a local paper on Sunsay morning, seternment had been "denounced" and caiming a "grand triumph for the Liberals." justified is having recourse to unblashing falsebood to bolster up their tottering cause.

It was apparent from the moment the chairman took his seat to preside at the meeting.

And whereas it has been deemed advisable

Never were men put more thoroughly hors de combat than Mr. Bunster and his aide-decamp, the senior member for Lillooet, whose services had been specially retained for the ecasion, to play the part of a Billingsgate fishwife, and to bespatter Mess's. DeCosmos and Beaven with that peculiar kind of filth with which an inscrutable Province has largely endowed him, and by the free use of which ne has earned for himself a notoriety anything but enviable in this good city of Victoria. As the meeting had been got up by Mr. Bun-and as Messrs. Beaven and DeCosmos had been placed by him in the position of defendants at the bar of public opinion to and as Messrs. Bearen and DeCosmos had been placed by him in the position of defendants at the bar of public opinion to justify their conduct as members of the Government, their acts having been called in question by Mr. Bunster and his satellites, it question by Mr. Bunster and his satellites, it was only fair that their accusers should open the proceedings and lay before the meeting a statement of the facts upon which they asked a verdict against them; but instead of doing so, the hon. Arthur shirked the responsibility, wouldn't come to the scratch at the call of "time," and Mr. Beaven, conscious of having been guilty of no single act that he need be either afraid or ashamed of, enwhich he is a member; without having heard a single word of the testimony of which the so-called "Liberals" professed to have, but dared not bring against them. Anticipating the line of attack, Mr. Beaven reviewed the acts and policy of the Government, and hav-ing spoken at considerable length, and being listened to with the greatest attention, he closed an able and telling address that left the Bunsterites without a leg to stand upon. The gallant Arthur would gladly have slunk away to town without attering a word, if he could have done so without incurring the ridicule and contempt of the assembled multitude; but having got himself into a very disagreeable predicament, he was compelled put on a bold front and battle bie way out as best he could. And a pretty mess he made of it, truly. Like a ship in a storm that had lost its beim, he pitched and floundered about in a most extraordinary manner, utterly reckless as to his assertions and apparently without any well defined ideas touching the subject he had in hand. The burden of his theme was a modified tariff, which he contended could have been obtained for British Columbia last session of Parliament, if the evernment had only seconded his efforts in that direction; but every intelligent farmer who listened to his ranting on this subject knew very well as well as he knew himse whatever to deal with that matter, the question having been finally disposed of the year before, and forever removed beyond the jurisdiction of the local House. Mr. DeCosmos followed Mr. Bunster, of whom he made short work; but as Mr B. was backed by a number of graces admitted from Victoria, whose mission to Sanich was neither to listen a assuments nor be acquire passing force. ten to arguments nor to acquire packet infor-mation, but to greate confusion, stifle discus-sion, and break up the meeting if needs be, Mr. DeCosmos was not permitted to enter fully upon the defence of the policy of the Government as he desired to do. He, however, said enough to satisfy every candid hearer that he and his colleagues had fully realized the highest expectations of their realized the highest expectations of their realized that had, during the short period they had been in office, effected more really useful legislation than any previous Government ever did. As for Mr. Hamphreys pieces discharge of Billingsgate, we have no disposition to burden these columns with any special reference thereto. It was a titled of shorter of the columns with any special reference thereto. It was a irade of chuse and misrepresentation and attend concern notice. As for the resoluing in question, we have just this to say: They were cooked up in the Colonist office, we are treatby informed, several days before the meeting took place, and not until the Lebbook's "Origin of Civil zation and Primitive Condition of Man," Archbishop Whately and other distinguished literary men maintain that the primitive condition of man was one of civilization, and account for the existence of savages by arguing they are mere outcasts of the human race driven to the woods and rocks. Lubbook affirms the contrary; that man was originally a barbarian, and civilization the result of gradual progress. Now, so far as the original or at least very ancient inhabitants of this neighborhool may effect these theories, it seems very probable if not certain that Cincinnati, June 29 - Jesse Grant, the father of the President, died of general debility at the residence, Covington, Kentucky, last they were of the savage type.
